Registration for National Defense

Next Friday, September 12—all day—is National Defense Day.

All patriotic men and women, between the ages of 18 and 45, who desire to do so, may register.

In this way, the federal government may ascertain its potential man power resources—not for offense, but for defense.

An all-peninsula parade will be held in Monterey at 2:30, to be followed by patriotic exercises at the ball park. The public is invited to participate.

Carmelites may register at the office of the Pine Cone.

Audience Charmed by Deru's Skill

By Mabel Gray Young

Last Sunday evening's concert marked the peak of musical events in Carmel and incidentally the closing of the summer season at the theatre of the Golden Bough.

Edouard Deru, the famous Belgian violinist, gave us a truly artistic reading of a program which comprised numbers both heavy and light, but all of the best in violin literature. It would be ridiculous for a man of Edouard Deru's standing in the musical world to come to little Carmel to find out how much of an artist he is, so I shall not presume to criticize but just express the evident pleasure he gave to a well-filled house. In fact, after the Bruch concerto, which might not make an immediate appeal to the layman, he was compelled to give an encore—the exquisite Rondo of Beethoven—and then still another encore—this one by Gluck. His tone, especially in pieces like the Saraband from the suite by Leclair, has a searching sweetness, that finds its way into every heart, whether musician or not. To me that particular number best expressed his charm.

The depth of tone in his more heroic compositions was almost like a viola. This was brought out in the Hebrew melody of Achron, a piece colored by the deep mystical faith of the Jewish race. The program closed with the graceful and spirited Gypsy Airs, by Sarasale, in which Mr. Deru expressed still another side of his art, this time the polish and finesse of the French school.

It was an evening to be remembered. I should like to ask that all concerts be given on holidays, when the town is filled with people from outside, otherwise, judging from the mere handful of faithful Carmelites in evidence—about twenty-five—the artists would play to empty houses.

Otto Lachmund Soon to Marry

Florence Ames Draper, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Draper of Duluth, Minn., will be married on September 11 to Otto Gray Lachmund, son of Mrs. Mabel Gray Young of Carmel. Mr. Lachmund attended Stanford, where he was a varsity football man and member of Alpha Tau Omega fraternity. The young couple will make their home in Duluth, where Mr. Lachmund is in the bond business. They plan to visit Carmel about the first of the year.

Coming Events

Monday evening, Sept. 8—Annual meeting, Carmel Club of Arts and Crafts.
October 12 to 19—Junipero Serra Pilgrimage, Monterey Peninsula.

October 16, 17, 18—The Nurserymaid of Heaven, by Thomas Wood Stevens. Theatre of the Golden Bough.

On Wednesday evening of next week the city board of equalization will hear protests on raises of property assessments.

Plans for Theatre of the Golden Bough Set Forth in Detail by Kuster and Browne

Plans of Edward G. Kuster

Edward Kuster, owner and director of Carmel's already nationally famous Theatre of the Golden Bough, has announced a fall and winter program which is full of interest, particularly to local producers, actors and stage workers. While the studio and laboratory character of the theatre as a whole will be steadily maintained, as in the summer season just past, there will be two separate groups functioning in the theatre, under the general title of Studio of the Theatre of the Golden Bough.

On the one hand, Maurice Browne will take over a definite portion of the working time of the theatre for his producing group of professional and professionally-inclined students, including the beneficiaries of scholarships and the "entered apprentices" who have worked with Browne either in the recent summer school at Carmel or at some former time.

On the other hand, Kuster will undertake the direction of a studio-theatre which shall remain amateur in status, using the term in its best sense. He will produce a number of interesting plays during the fall, casting them from Carmel's permanent and seasonal residents, and alternating these productions with Browne's on the theatre's calendar.

In another column of this issue is published in detail Maurice Browne's plan of studio organization as well as the list of plays to be produced under his direction.

After the latter's departure in January with his travelling company, a portion of the calendar of the theatre will be given over to other directors, probably including some local producers, Irving Pichel, Reginald Travers and other Western men will probably make productions here, before Browne's departure, but several outstanding Eastern directors have expressed desire for opportunity to make some first productions at the theatre next spring. If this can be brought about Carmel will find itself, considerably earlier than Kuster himself had anticipated, one of the most important creative producing centers for the non-commercial theatre in this country.

The opening play of the fall will be Thomas Wood Stevens' "The Nurserymaid of Heaven," which will have its first Western production under Kuster's direction during the week of the Serra Pilgrimage. The convent setting of this exquisite little mediaeval miracle play can be admirably realized in the softly-lighted passages and corridors of the Golden Bough. The production is being looked forward to with interest by play-lovers in the Bay cities, many of whom have visited the theatre during the summer. Seat reservations for the opening night are already under way.

The Pilgrimage play will be followed by two of Maurice Browne's productions, which in turn will be succeeded by a delightful group of one-act plays to be produced by the director of the Golden Bough, with local casts: "Op-o-me Thumb," by Frederick Fenner and Richard Pryce; "Teja," by Hermann Sudermann; and "The Rider of Dreams," by Ridgley Torrence. The latter two plays have not before been produced in the West. Kuster's excellent production of "Op-o-me Thumb" last spring will be remembered and he is fortunate in being able to retain the same cast for the forthcoming performances in his own theatre of this delicate little comedy, smiling through its tears.

The evening of one-act plays will be followed by Ibsen's "The Master Builder," to be directed by Maurice Browne, and produced with his own company. Browne himself playing Solness, one of his favorite roles.

The succeeding play, to be given in

Plans of Maurice Browne

Maurice Browne's second Carmel season will begin this autumn at Edward Gerhard Kuster's Theatre of the Golden Bough on October the first. He will devote himself entirely to production, without any class work; his first performances will be given at the end of October, and a new play staged every few weeks. He announces as his productions:

October 31st and November 1st—A comedy to be selected from the following: "Jim and I," by Philip Barry; "Don," by Rudolf Besier, and "The Philanderer," by George Bernard Shaw; November 14th and 15th—"The Ship," by St. John Ervine;

December 5th and 6th—"The Master Builder," by Henrik Ibsen;

January 2nd and 3rd—A revised and rewritten version of Browne's own Passion Play, "The King of the Jews."

Particular interest attaches to the production of "The Ship," as this will mark the world premiere of what many critics regard as the finest play yet written by the author of "Jane Clegg" and "John Ferguson." The list shows clearly that Browne is not so closely wedded to poetic tragedy as is sometimes whispered by dramatic chatter-boxes, with a polite disregard for facts and for "The Princess Who Wouldn't Say Die."

These preliminary productions may be followed by a revival of "The Mother of Gregory" and the premiere of Browne's comedy, concerning which so many curious (and contradictory) rumors are current, "The Strange Case of God and Miss Sippy." Miss Van Volkenburg (Mrs. Browne) will return west in time to take part in her husband's plays, before they are taken on tour early in the year.

Browne's Company will include: Charles McAllister, George Miller Ball, the Misses Betty and Margaret Barr, Miss Annchen Kolb, Miss Carlisle Tupper, Miss Marjorie Morris, Miss Zahrah Lee, Mrs. Mildred Busby, Mrs. Helen Battle, William Edward Shepard, and others, whose names will be announced later. This company is organized in an unusual and interesting manner, rather reminiscent of the Mediaeval guilds. Each season Browne selects from his students those two or three whose work has been the most promising, and gives them scholarships for the following season; at the end of their second (or third) season, if their work still merits it, they are promoted to professional standing and placed on the pay roll, at first for quite modest amounts, later, in certain cases, on salaries similar to those paid in the commercial theatres.

Browne's Carmel Company next season will be organized in this manner, and will include professional graduates, scholars (three of them selected from the summer school of the Golden Bough just completed), and "entered apprentices" paying tuition fees. The number of these latter is very strictly limited, and most of the vacancies are already filled, room now being left for only one or two girls and two or three men. Mr. Kuster and Mr. Browne have arranged that this company, when on tour, shall be known as "Players of the Golden Bough,"—a term which will be applicable also to the Carmel players working under Kuster's own direction when the latter group shall have acquired the necessary solidarity and permanence of organization.

Although, as a matter of fact, Browne won his spurs in the theatre as an actor, before he became known as a director, and long before he was spoken of as a dramatist, Carmel knows him only in the latter two capacities and, it may be surmised, will await his appearance here in the title-roles of one or more of the above plays with no little curiosity,—despite Browne's own avowal, in one

Carmel Speaker at Labor Meet

At the Labor Day Celebration of the Monterey County Federation of Labor, at Pacific Grove, Miss Anne Martin, Independent candidate for United States Senator from Nevada in 1918 and 1920, and former chairman of the National Woman's Party, spoke on women in the labor movement.

She said she had been asked to discuss the subject, "How women can help men in industry," but that she preferred to discuss "How organized labor can help women in industry," and thus strengthen the whole labor movement. She stated that women were not admitted to the men's trade unions with rare exceptions, and that this forced them to depend in large measure on protective legislation like minimum wage laws, whose tendency is to keep women unorganized and the wage scale lower for both men and women.

She stated that the chief effect of "protective" laws for women in New York state was to deprive women of well paid jobs as street car operators and linotype setters, since they were prohibited from night work, but that this prohibition did not apply to the underpaid, rheumatic scrubwomen who had to spend the night cleaning up Wall street offices. She declared that if protective laws are good and necessary for women they are good and necessary for men, and that such laws should apply equally to both men and women, leaving the field open for both to secure the work they are best fitted for, through collective bargaining with the power of organized men and women behind it.

Such organization, she declared, would be the best possible groundwork for an effective labor party in this country, with men and women working together as equals to win the election and put a government in power which will ensure better lives for all the people, as is now being done in Great Britain.

LITTLE PILGRIMS

Publicity for the Serra Pilgrimage got a tremendous boost from the horde of week-end visitors. Many of them engaged accommodations for the week of October 12 to 19.

A song contest will be held in many California theatres to bring out the words best adapted for Search and Van Vleck's new song, "Carmelita." Some of our versifiers might try it. One hundred dollars has been allowed to finance the contest.

"The Rose of the Rancho" and the pageant, "Junipero Serra," are in rehearsal. Director General Perry Newberry is receiving fine co-operation in these events.

Now comes the Serra Fizz, a new drink being served in the ice cream parlors in the Three Cities.

The Southern Pacific company is making preparations to handle big crowds during Pilgrimage Week. There will be special round-trip rates, from all parts of the state.

The Last Day

of his recent lectures, that he had never been able to live either up or down to his reputation.

Anyhow, what with these productions at the Theatre of the Golden Bough, Kuster's own productions there, the Arts and Crafts productions, and the Serra Pageant, Carmel is hardly likely to have a dull winter dramatically.

Science Halts for Beauty

Leaving the field of science for an excursion into realms of beauty, C. D. Kinsman and his wife were conducted to Carmel by Leonard J. Fletcher to be overnight guests of his mother, Mrs. Etta Fletcher, last week-end. Mr. Kinsman of the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., is inspecting power as applied to agriculture throughout California, which is far in advance of any other state in this respect. Professor Fletcher, head of the agricultural engineering division of the University of California, is piloting the trip, and arranged for a few hours of concentrated California beauty by the brief visit here.

Always Hoping

A Berkeley subscriber writes as follows:
Editor of the Pine Cone.

Dear Sir: This little poem was sent me today by the "poet" himself, a former Californian, who has been living for some years in Detroit, always hoping to return some day to California.

My Friend

I have a friend, a life-long friend,
Down by a sapphire sea;
That friend is old and bowed with age,
But what vitality!

This friend of mine's a silent friend,
Quite full of mystery;
Five hundred years, aye, even more,
It's dwelt there by the sea!

My friend stands by a well-worn road
Much traveled by a throng
That slowly wends its way each day
In admiration, song!

I've spent much time beneath its form
When feeling out of sorts;
It brings me peace and quietness
And many Godly thoughts!

This friend I love and know so well
Down by that sapphire sea,
Has rugged limbs and coat of rust—
My friend's a cypress tree!

WOODY.

DICKENS' TREASURE SOLD

The record price of $20,000 was paid recently in London for a copy of "Pickwick," complete in the original parts, published in 1836, and described as the "finest and purest copy that has been found." An Englishman was the buyer, in a spirited contest with a New Yorker.

America, however, secured another Dickens treasure in a first edition of "The Village Coquettes," 1836, bought by Gabriel Wells of New York. The price was in the neighborhood of $15,000 and many experts now say that they consider it more valuable than the "Pickwick."

"DEVIL'S BIBLE" IS THE LARGEST

The largest Bible in existence, and curiously known as the "Devil's Bible," is in the royal palaces at Stockholm. It is a huge copy of the Scriptures, immensely valuable, and written on 300 prepared skins of asses. It is beautifully illustrated, the covers being of solid oak planks four inches thick, and the pages measure a yard in length. It is probably termed as it is because it is a devil of a job to handle it.

Edward Fitzgerald sent 500 copies of his translated Omar Khayyam to a dealer in Hempstead, who tried to sell them at sixpence apiece. Failing to dispose of them he asked Fitzgerald to come for his books. Those first autographed volumes are selling today for anywhere from $300 to $1000 each.

All the news of Carmel published in the weekly Pine Cone. It's two dollars a year.

NEED FOR FIRE PROTECTION

The need for making every reasonable effort to prevent fires is self-evident, but unfortunately it is often overlooked. This is true of any home or manufacturing plant but is particularly important as it applies to those places where inflammable materials are present.

It would be a wise thing indeed for the Carmel city trustees to order a town clean-up—streets, back yards and vacant lots. Many real fire hazards exist here.

Fire prevention deserves very serious consideration in every community. Exhaustive studies of fires that have occurred in the past indicate means for preventing similar fires in the future. Practically every fire furnishes lessons in fire prevention from which all can profit.

FAITH IN AMERICA

In a recent number of Harper's Magazine, David F. Houston has a constructive article which shows that this country is sound in spite of the workings of pessimists, agitators and demagogues.

Those whose comparisons are with the heroic days of George Washington are reminded that he was by some of his own day called a hypocrite, an imposter and a murderer. Those whose political demigods are the Clays, the Websters and the Calhouns are told that Cleveland, Wilson and Richard Olney were more worthy to be followed than these statesmen of the former days. And to those who do not look back at all, but only about them in bewilderment and disgust upon scandals, class conflicts and blocs, Mr. Houston brings the conclusion that no one class or "bloc" has sense enough to govern all the other classes, and that present "bloes" will disappear even as did the ones against which Washington warned the people.

There is, with a safeguarded economic stability, a spirit in the people which will insist upon a clean national household from cellar to attic, and which prompts this financier whose roots are deep in the soil of America to advise the public that "the United States is today the safest investment in the world."

We have succeeded, the ex-Secretary contends, despite all our mistakes and failures and official shortcomings, because we have had, on the whole, a "competent people." And he adds the corollary that the right kind of people can run any sort of government, while the wrong sort cannot run any kind.

One cannot read Mr. Houston's articles without new hope for America, and even for Europe.

Kuster Plans for the Golden Bough

December with an all-Carmel cast, will be a full-length comedy, to be chosen from a number now under Kuster's consideration.

The last play of this interesting series will be Maurice Browne's "The King of the Jews," a Passion Play said to be of great beauty and dignity, which will be produced during the New Year holidays.

Appropos of the season above indicated Edward Kuster says: "The charge of the Pine Cone that I have been unduly reticent regarding my ultimate aims for the Theatre of the Golden Bough, is probably just, as charges go. But actual results, whether in the construction of a theatre building or in the building up of an ideal state of things within its walls, seem to me to be at once more easily understood and more important than any words that I can say in advance."

"If, to mention an analogous case, I had attempted to describe, as I was so often requested, the infinity of hues and shades which I expected to put into the exterior stucco walls of the building, scores of people would no doubt have protested, with the utmost conviction, against the proposed hideosity. No adverse criticism of any consequence, however, has been visited on this feature of the construction since its actual completion."

"But, I was caught off my guard and compelled to explain the purpose of certain underpinning in the partly constructed theatre, with the consequence that I wasted innumerable golden hours arguing for the practicability of a permanent forestage, which everybody now concedes to be a meritorious affair."

"So I am in no hurry to rush into print with a statement of my ultimate ideals and of my plans for attaining them, so far as may be. For the next issue of the Pine Cone I will supply you, however, with my own criticism, destructive and constructive, of the summer season just past, incidentally suggesting certain ways in which Carmel audiences can help authors, directors, actors and scenic artists, both in the Theatre of the Golden Bough and other theatres, to do finer work."

"As for my immediate plans, there is nothing new or debatable in the idea of a studio-theatre. The First and Second Studios of the Moscow Art Theatre, the finest theatre today, provide me with a pretty safe guide. The Moscow Art Theatre itself was developed from a combination of dramatic school and one of Russia's tiniest of Little Theatres. To develop on this western edge of the American continent an exemplary civic and institutional theatre, with a group of sincere and competent amateurs of the Theatre to carry on its tradition, is my job. And the first principle of organization for such a group is, in Stanislavski's own words, that there are no small roles—there are only small actors?"

Local Humane Society Has Many Problems

The Carmel Humane Society has come to stay. It has proved its need and usefulness during the past year. Nearly one hundred dogs have been rescued from the streets and more than twice that number of cats and kittens. This is not only kindness to the animals but extreme kindness to the residents of Carmel. Each dog and cat has been boarded one week at the expense of the Society and an effort to find a good home for it. If a home cannot be found it is painlessly put to sleep.

Aside from this work various cases of reported cruelty to the larger animals have been investigated, and many lost dogs have been returned to their owners. In regard to the lost dogs (quite a problem) the Humane Society requests that all dog-owners put collars on their dogs and the owner's name on the collar. The name can be scratched on in ink; this is of help in restoring dogs to their owners. A dog on the street without a collar is nobody's dog, be he thoroughbred or mongrel.

The biggest problem of the Humane Society in Carmel is the great number of dogs and cats left to look out for themselves after the owners have moved away. The animals run the streets half starved and disease arrives, and spreads among them. The cats howl at the back door of kind-hearted people and become half wild hunting a living, all too successfully for the song bird. The Society aims to collect and care for these abandoned animals and is trying to bring sufficient pressure to bear upon permanent residents so they will feel more responsibility toward their pets and thus cases of this kind will lessen.

Carmel residents are reminded that the Humane Society receives no help from either the city or state.

PINE NEEDLES

Don Francisco, well-known southern California advertising man, is at the Highlands with his wife.

The Cherington house in northwest Carmel is now owned by Dr. and Mrs. L. H. Graves, who are occupying it.

Friday evening of each week will be the meeting time of the group recently organized to study moral and religious questions, at All Saints' chapel.

Mrs. J. E. Montague of Oakland, who was Nellie Murphy when she lived here with her parents some years ago, is visiting Mrs. Ray C. DeYoe.

Miss Constance Heron has just returned from a two weeks' vacation in San Francisco, where she was the guest of Mrs. Grace Travis.

Mrs. Sam Levinson and family, who have been occupying the Gottfried cottage on Dolores street, left for their home in San Francisco today, after spending three months here.

The Collis residence has been sold to Mr. and Mrs. James Gulick of Elsinore. The new owners have been occupying the house for some time, but have now gone south for a brief visit.

Rev. Fred W. Sheldon will give an informal address on his impressions of Chautauqua and the East at the Carmel Church tomorrow night. He will preach as usual in the morning.

A tea for the benefit of St. Anne's Guild will be held on the afternoon of Admission Day—next Tuesday. The affair will be in the nature of a house-warming to be held in the attractive home of Mrs. Rose J. DeYoe, Monte Verde at Fifth.

Fair enough! With the Prince of Wales in America it is only courteous to have at the same time prominent Americans in England, so some time this month Carmel is sending J. F. Devendorf to London to call on the King and to take in the exposition.

Ida Mansfield-Wilson, who has returned to Carmel after two months' absence, will resume her lectures and classes at the Mansfield-Wilson cottage on Dolores, between Eighth and Ninth streets. Unity service, tomorrow, at 2:30 p. m. Subject, "A Little Lower Than the Angels." All are welcome.

The attractive new home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry T. Russell below Carmel Highlands off the coast road is nearing completion. The residence is of Italian architecture and was designed and built by DeWitt Appleton. Mr. Appleton is also building a stone wall of Spanish type around the W. C. Watts home near the Russells.

House guests at Mission Tea House are Mr. and Mrs. Edgar R. Downs, Pasadena; R. W. Newman, Ben Kellman, Sacramento; Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Cahill, Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Whitaker of Bakersfield entertained at dinner at the Mission Tea House, August 30, at two tables, for Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kuster, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Thale, Salinas, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Muir, Ysabel H. Forker, Alma Forker.

After the Deru concert Sunday evening, Mrs. Mabel Gray Young entertained a number of friends at Basham's in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Edouard Deru. Those invited were mostly old friends of the Charles Coopers of New York and Baltimore, who are also mutual friends of the Derus. Mrs. Cooper will be remembered as Pearl Tuttle, who was one of the little group who first came to Carmel in 1906. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Fred R. Bechdoit, Mrs. James Hopper, Dr. R. H. Hollingsworth, Mr. and Mrs. David Alberto, Mr. and Mrs. Edouard Deru and Mrs. Young.

The Pine Cone Press is a modern printing plant, keeping pace with every improvement in the craft.

Business Transacted by Board of Trustees

The monthly meeting of the city fathers (and mother) was held last Tuesday night. Not much of importance happened, except perhaps the passage of another sewer system ordinance.

The board took under consideration the request of the local Humane Society, asking that a poundmaster be appointed.

The tax rate for 1924-25 was fixed at $1 on each $100 on assessed valuation of real and personal property.

City Clerk Saidee Van Brower is to have a new typewriter and an adding machine, so the board has decreed.

1924-25 County Tax Rate Set

The county tax rate for 1924-25, fixed by the board of supervisors, is $2.28 1-2 on the $100. This is 1 1-2c less than last year's rate. An increase of over a million dollars in the assessment roll will bring in approximately as much revenue as last year. The total valuation is $39,409,060.

The foregoing rate is for sections outside of incorporated cities. The "inside" rate is 40 cents less.

There is also a library tax of 3 1-2 cents.

Betty Merle Horn has gone to San Francisco, where she will open a studio; Betty Lawrence left Wednesday for New York, where she will be accompanist for the Denishawn dancers; Rose Bogdanoff is attending the Art Institute in Chicago; Maurice Browne has left for parts unknown to rest. All these people were connected with the Golden Bough during the summer.
